PAK INFLATION EASES TO LOWEST IN THREE YEARS

PAKISTAN'S INFLATION EASED further in August to the lowest in almost three years, giving the central bank room to reduce interest rates further. Consumer prices rose 9.64% in August from a year ago, data released by Pakistan Bureau of Statistics showed.

4 FATALLY SHOT ON CHICAGO SUBWAY: POLICE

FOUR PEOPLE WERE killed on Monday in a shooting on a subway train outside Chicago, police said. Three people were pronounced dead at the Forest Park station, an above-ground stop on the Chicago Transit Authority's Blue Line. The fourth victim died at a hospital.

BYTEDANCE TAPS BANKS FOR $9.5 BILLION LOAN

TIKTOK-OWNER BYTEDANCE is tapping banks for a $9.5 billion loan that would be the biggest dollar-denominated corporate facility in Asia ex-Japan, people said on Monday. Citigroup, Goldman Sachs and JPMorgan are the coordinators of the financing.

German coalition may hang on after losing to far right

THE FAR RIGHT'S first victory in a German state election in the post-war era prompted soul-searching in Berlin on Monday, but Chancellor Olaf Scholz's battered and unloved coalition looked as if it would hold together.

All three parties in Scholz's centre-left coalition suffered painful losses while the nationalist Alternative for Germany (AfD) and a new anti-establishment populist party booked record gains in the eastern states of Thuringia and Saxony on Sunday.

Scholz, a Social Democrat, described the results as "bitter" but finance minister Christian Lindner rejected suggestions that his neoliberal Free Democrats (FDP), who fared the worst of all coalition partners, should quit the government.

With a year to go to national elections, the results are nonetheless likely to foment tensions in a coalition riven by ideological differences and struggling to deal with the fallout from the Ukraine war including a cost-of-living crisis. The AfD became the first far-right party to win a state legislature election in Germany since World War Two with its 32.8% showing in Thuringia. And it came a close second, at 30.6%, behind the mainstream conservative Christian Democrats in neighbouring Saxony.

The FDP were crushed, turfing out of the Thuringia parliament and unable to

SETTING UP SHOWDOWN WITH UNIONS VW weighs first-ever German plant closure

MONICA RAYMUNT & CHRISTOPH RAUWALD September 2

VOLKSWAGEN (VW) IS considering unprecedented factory closures in Germany, setting up a showdown with powerful unions as the country's most important industry fights for its future.

The potential measures also include trying to end the company's three-decades-old pact with workers to keep jobs secure, the company said Monday. VW's main target is its underperforming nameplate passenger car brand but other group operations must also find savings.

Any shutdowns would mark the first closures in Germany during the company's 87-year history. "The economic environment has become even tougher and new players are pushing into Europe," VW chief executive officer Oliver Blume said. "Germany as a business location is falling further behind in terms of competitiveness."

A full-blown labour dispute would be a major test for the CEO — who also heads up the Porsche sports car brand — after union clashes helped a number of his VW predecessors. The company has struggled to cut costs at its namesake passenger brand where profit margins have long lagged, with efforts becoming harder amid a sputtering transition to EVs and a consumer spending slowdown.

Raising returns at the VW brand has become tougher with higher logistics, energy and labour costs. The nameplate's margin fell to 2.3% during the first half, compared to 3.8% a year ago. The company has also lost momentum in its main market China with its EV model range far behind competitors.

The looming clash at one of Germany's biggest companies threatens a postwar consensus where workers hold significant sway. Decades-old codetermination agreements are coming under pressure as new competitors target Germany's industrial bedrock, and a surge in right-wing support undermines the political continuum.

On Sunday, election results in two eastern German states delivered another humbling for Chancellor Olaf Scholz's SPD and his two coalition partners.

The Alternative for Germany party, classified by security services as right-wing extremist, placed second in Saxony, where VW owns an EV-making plant in Zwickau. The party won the elections in neighboring Thuringia with 32.8% of the vote, the first triumph for a far-right party in a German state ballot since World War II.

VW employs about 650,000 workers globally, almost 300,000 of which are in Germany. Half the seats on the company's supervisory board are held by labour representatives, and the German state of Lower Saxony — which owns a 20% stake — often sides with trade union bodies. The setup is part of a labyrinthine governance system where management must gain the billionaire Porsche-Piech family and labour side support for major decisions.

Huawei to float new products to counter Apple

GAO YUAN September 2

HUAWEI TECHNOLOGIES IS preparing to launch new products at an event mere hours after Apple's debut for the iPhone 16, setting the stage for the two tech giants' next clash.

Consumer group chief Richard Yu announced the September 10 reveal on Weibo, teasing "an epoch-making product" that took five years of work and investment. Huawei plans to unveil the world's first commercial-ready smartphone that folds twice, according to a person familiar with its plans.

The company is also preparing an Aito electric vehicle launch, though the final products to be released are subject to change, the person said, asking not to be named discussing private plans.

Archival Apple is launching its new family of iPhone handsets and accessories on September 9, making its pitch for why consumers should upgrade their devices.

In China, Huawei pushed Apple out of the top five device makers in the June quarter, after reclaiming its share of the premium market with the Mate 60 series powered by a breakthrough chip.

Scheduling an event so soon after the new iPhone's launch would suggest the company is ready to go head-to-head with Apple again.

Yu has been spotted with the new device in hand, dubbed a trifold. Its key advantage would be the ability to fit an even larger, tablet-like screen inside the dimensions of a regular smartphone.

Huawei, alongside fellow Chinese device makers like Honor Device and Xiaomi, has developed some of the thinnest foldable phones to date and has been working on evolving the form factor further.

China warns Japan of new chip curbs

Japanese export controls.

The US has been pressuring Japan to impose additional restrictions on the ability of firms including Tokyo Electron to sell advanced chipmaking tools to China, part of a long-running campaign to curtail China's semiconductor progress.

With those talks, senior US officials have been working with their Japanese counterparts on a strategy to ensure adequate supplies of critical minerals, some of the people said, especially since China imposed restrictions on the exports of gallium, germanium and graphite last year.

The concern about Toyota has some historical precedent. In 2010, China temporarily suspended exports of rare earths to Japan after a clash in waters of the East China Sea claimed by both sides. The move shook Japan's electronics sector and threatened to choke off global supplies of high-power magnets produced in Japan employing rare earths from China. Tokyo has since worked with mixed success to reduce its reliance on Chinese rare earth imports.

Shares of Japan's chip-related companies fell after Bloomberg's report of the China-Japan clash. Tokyo Electron shares fell as much as 1.9%, while Lasertec Corp. and Disco Corp. dropped as much as 2.8% and 3.3% respectively.

Some in Japan pushed back on the idea that the Tokyo government should fall into line with Washington's latest geopolitical strategy. "Japan shouldn't tighten its export control just because the US is making such a request," said Akira Minamikawa, an analyst with the research firm Omdia. "Japan should have its own philosophy, decide what's best for the country and stand firm."

The Biden administration is confident that they can assuage Tokyo's concerns and reach an agreement with Japan by the end of this year, some of the people said.

Brazil top court ratifies ban on X in growing Musk feud

DANIEL CARVALHO September 2

THE SUPREME COURT confirmed an order to ban Elon Musk's social network X in Brazil and fine those who don't comply with it by using a virtual private network, or VPN.

All five judges on the top court panel voted in favor of the decision to shut down the platform formerly known as Twitter during a virtual trial on Monday. X can still appeal the decision, after the conclusion of the hearing.

The site has been suspended since a late Friday order by Justice Alexandre de Moraes. The top-court judge is spearheading efforts to combat fake news and hate speech in Brazil and faces claims of overstepping his bounds by undermining free speech.

Moraes issued the order after Musk defied several previous decisions, including refusing to name a legal representative for the social network in Latin America's biggest economy. X went dark over the weekend, affecting its 20 million users in Brazil — among the world's most-online nations.

The suspension, according to Moraes' order, is in effect until the company agrees to block profiles with anti-democratic or criminal content, pays fines imposed so far and names a legal representative in the country.

Blackstone nears $13-bn deal to acquire AirTrunk

GILLIAN TAN September 2

BLACKSTONE IS NEARING a deal to acquire Australian data center operator AirTrunk for more than $20 billion ($13.5 billion) including debt, people known to matter said, in what could be one of the largest digital infrastructure deals this year.

Blackstone has emerged as the preferred buyer for AirTrunk after outbidding other rival bidders, the people said. The New York-based alternative asset manager and AirTrunk owners Macquarie Group and PSP Investments are negotiating the final details of a transaction that could be signed as soon as this week, the people said.

A deal hasn't been finalised and terms could change as talks continue, the people said. Blackstone has been in talks with banks for a $5.5 billion loan to be raised at the holding company level, Bloomberg reported last week. Representatives for Blackstone, Macquarie and PSP declined to comment.

That would be on top of a $7 billion pre-arranged funding package provided to bidders that four banks have underwritten, while private credit funds have been in talks to provide at least $1.5 billion of junior debt,

Bloomberg reported in June.

Blackstone has been competing with a separate consortium that includes IFM Investors Pty, DigitalBridge Group Inc., Global Infrastructure Partners and Silver Lake Management, people familiar with the matter have said.

The Asian cloud-services market has been heating up, with KKR agreeing to acquire a 20% stake in Singapore Telecommunications' regional data center business last year. A year earlier, Blackstone launched its first wholly-owned platform related to the sector in Asia. Macquarie has a long history of investing in digital infrastructure and is one of the largest active firms in the sector. Ani Satchcroft and Ben Way have helped helm Macquarie Asset Management's investment in AirTrunk since 2019.

AirTrunk operates data centers in Australia, Singapore, Hong Kong, Japan and Malaysia, according to its website. A group led by Macquarie's infrastructure arm took control of the company in 2020 in a deal that valued it at about $3 billion, Bloomberg reported at the time. Prior to that, it was owned by investors including Goldman Sachs' special division.
